ACADEMY

A high-angle photograph of three blue and white single-seater race cars on a track. The cars are positioned diagonally across the frame, with the lead car in the foreground and two others following behind it. The track has a red and white striped curb on the right side. The cars feature the FFSA Academy logo and various sponsor markings.

Gabriel is a calm, analytical young driver who has progressed quickly through the French federation pathway. His 2026 karting season highlighted a clear aptitude in wet and low-grip conditions, while dry-grip execution remained an important development focus. His approach is built around technical feedback, disciplined preparation and repeatable progress.

THE MOVE TO F4

Le Mans - September 2026

FIRST F4 TEST. FIRST REFERENCES.

The first objective was not lap time. It was to understand the car, build reliable references and learn how to communicate effectively with engineers.

BRAKING

New speed range, brake pressure and reference points.

TYRES & GRIP

Learning how the car responds as grip and balance evolve.

DATA

Turning sensations into information that can be reviewed.

FEEDBACK

Clear, concise communication after each run.

PROCEDURES

Building habits around preparation, safety and consistency

PACE

Speed as a consequence of understanding - not the starting point.

2026 - LEARNING UNDER PRESSURE

Karting as preparation for the next step

A SEASON TO LEARN

New circuits, national-level grids and rapidly changing conditions made 2026 a demanding learning season.

WET CONDITIONS

A recurring strength across the season; Gabriel showed confidence and race awareness when grip was limited.

DRY CONDITIONS

Still a development area: confidence, precision and repeatability remain central to the work.

RACECRAFT

Starts, traffic, changing lines and decision-making were learned in real competition.

TRANSITION

The season ended with the focus shifting from karting to the demands of Formula 4.

FRENCH F4 2027

2027 OBJECTIVE

Gabriel's first F4 season is about building a strong technical and sporting foundation: learning the car, improving racecraft, using data effectively and turning feedback into measurable progress across the year.
